

Paul Mecurio

Emmy & Peabody Award Winner

Paul is an Emmy & Peabody Award winner for "The Daily Show w/Jon Stewart," "The Late Show w/Stephen Colbert," making recurring appearances on "The Late Show" and on cable and sports news outlets.

Paul can currently be seen opposite Golden Globe Winner, Liev Schreiber in the film, "Chuck," the story about journeyman boxer, Chuck Wepner, the real-life Rocky Balboa.

Paul can be seen in the upcoming crime drama film "Johnny and Clyde," starring Megan Fox.

Paul also created and starred in his hit, unique one-man Broadway show, "Paul Mecurio's Permission to Speak" which was met with rave reviews and been nominated for the prestigious "Best One-Man Show" Broadway Alliance Award. After the Covid variant shutdown the show will be resumed.

Paul has hosted his own shows for Comedy Central, HBO and CBS as well as his own talk show. He has appeared in his own Comedy Central and Showtime Specials, made several appearances on "The Late Show w/Stephen Colbert," "The Daily Show," "The CBS Late, Late Show," HBO, "The Tonight Show," "Conan," ESPN, and Showtime.

Paul has made dozens of national television appearances as a recurring contributor on the major broadcast and cable networks including on such shows as the venerable

"CBS Sunday Morning," "CNN New Day," "CNN Newsroom," MSNBC, CBS News, NBC News, CBSN, CNBC, ESPN and ESPN +, Fox News, VH-1, "Dr. Drew," "Katie Couric," "Outnumbered," "Kennedy," "Showbiz Tonight," "Viewpoint," "Hannity," "Fox and Friends," HLN, "Real Story" and many more.

After graduating Georgetown Law School with high honors, Paul worked as a lawyer on Wall Street at a top tier international law firm (Willkie Farr & Gallagher) and as an investment banker at a major Investment Bank (Credit Suisse), executing multi-billion dollar M&A transactions for Fortune 100 companies.

While on Wall Street Paul was hired by Jay Leno to write jokes for "The Tonight Show." After living a secret double life as a Wall Street lawyer/banker by day and comedian by night, Paul left Wall Street to go into entertainment full time ... if he hadn't he would have had a nervous breakdown trying to keep the two worlds separate.

Paul was featured on "The Daily Show" as a correspondent and in "The Daily Show" segment, "Second Opinion," in which Paul skewered the medical profession playing an HMO representative with a less than sympathetic mindset.

He has hosted several shows and pilots for Comedy Central, CBS, HBO and VH-1.

Paul is also a published essayist: "The New York Times Sunday Magazine."

Paul's interviewing skills are unparalleled as one can hear on his hit, critically-acclaimed podcast, "The Paul Mecurio Show" on iTunes, Spotify and Audioboom. He has wide-ranging interests and his guests reflect that. His A-list guests at the pinnacle of the worlds of entertainment, pop culture, music, politics, science, sports and more, include ...
