

Dana Perino & Donna Brazile

Popular Female Political Outlook Duo

Dana Perino, a political commentator and a former White House press secretary, is the second female press secretary in US history and the first Republican woman to hold that position. Perino, an expert on health care, energy policy, and female leaders in government, is the host of Fox News' The Daily Briefing with Dana Perino, and a co-host of Fox News' The Five. Her commentary is found in major publications. Before she joined the White House, she was a spokesperson at the Department of Justice. As a widely-respected member of President Bush's senior staff, Perino addresses politics, message management, and energy policy.

Political Strategist, Donna Brazile, is the former interim chair of the Democratic National Committee (DNC), an adjunct professor, best-selling author, syndicated columnist, television commentator, and vice chair of voter registration and participation at the Democratic National Committee. She was also the first African American woman to manage a presidential campaign. Oprah's O magazine chose her as one of its "20 remarkable visionaries" and the Washingtonian named her one of its "100 Most Powerful Women." Brazile is known for her ability to analyze the political climate and attract supporters and addresses this and the political mood of the country.
