

R. Scott Dingle

Army Surgeon General and Commanding General, US Army Medical Command from 2019-2024

Exclusively represented by Leading Authorities speakers bureau, Dingle brings a natural gravitas to any event as he reflects upon his experiences as Army Surgeon General and Commanding General of USAMEDCOM to share cornerstone lessons and takeaways for how truly influential leaders navigate chaos and complexity, foster cultures built to withstand the ebbs and flows on the path to achieving success, and empower cross-functional teams that build consensus, operate in sync, and are positioned to win big. He is a skilled storyteller whose relatable anecdotes from his own career lend credence to the wisdom he imparts, while reassuring each person that they are capable of making a profound impact within their teams, organizations, and communities.

Dingle was appointed acting United States Army Surgeon General in July 2019 and, soon after, was confirmed by the Senate for promotion to Lieutenant General and permanent assignment as United States Army Surgeon General. Dingle led USAMEDCOM's response to the Covid-19 pandemic, serving on the White House's Operation Warp Speed Covid-19 task force and as an instrumental figure in the Army's efforts to strengthen and modernize its health infrastructure. Previously, Dingle held various high-ranking roles in the military healthcare system, including Commanding General of the Regional Health Command-Atlantic (the nation's premier military health system), director of healthcare operations at the Office of the Surgeon General, and commander of the 30th Medical Brigade in Germany. During his tenure as Army Surgeon General, he served on the advisory council for the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States and a board member for Army Emergency Relief and the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences.

Throughout his illustrious career, Dingle has been honored with various awards and decorations in recognition of his exceptional contributions to his country. Among them are the Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal, Meritorious Service Medal, Joint Service Commendation, and Joint Meritorious Service Medal.

In a world that's ever-changing, Lieutenant General Dingle's legacy of leadership, readiness, and adaptation remains ingrained within the cultures of the teams he has led, and is a source of inspiration for servant leaders across varying industries and backgrounds.
