

Bob Schieffer

Former Moderator of Face the Nation and Former CBS News Chief Washington Correspondent

Political Outlook From a Political Insider. With a career that has dealt almost exclusively with politics, Schieffer is one of the most knowledgeable and most respected journalists in the nation. With a unique style that's "equal parts folksy inquisitor and experienced political insider," according to NPR, he offers insightful look at today's political climate told through insider stories about the most fascinating aspects of politics—how politicians operate behind the scenes. Named a "Living Legend" by the Library of Congress, Schieffer harnesses his enduring appeal as he shares what could only have been learned about politics and elections from his more than five decades of on-the-job experience.

Washington—The Last Four Decades. Bob Schieffer is a beloved Washington insider who, as USA Today said, "has been on a first-name basis with key DC figures for decades." He is one of the few journalists who have covered all four major beats in the nation's capital – the White House, the Pentagon, the State Department, and Capitol Hill, and he understands the city like no one else. With his nearly six decades of experience, he shares a riveting look inside Washington—behind the scenes and behind the camera. He tells incredible, insider stories that get to the heart of the politicians and key players driving the top news stories and shares how the nation's capital has changed over the years—looking at where we were and where this new culture, demographic change, and dysfunction are taking us. Schieffer's signature style and magnetic presence make this presentation one not to be missed.
