

Reid Wilson

Founder, Chief Executive, and Editor-in-Chief of Pluribus News; Former National Correspondent for The Hill

Politics, Politics, Politics! Reid Wilson offers a nuanced and detailed analysis of our current political environment and the upcoming elections. With incredible callback of political figures and statistics, his presentation is visual and analytical—a must see for those concerned with understanding the details of the elections and the driving forces behind them. Wilson cuts through the spin and tells the truth about the state of politics and Washington today as he forecasts election results. He offers audiences a behind-the-curtain look at Capitol Hill, K Street, and election campaigns and shares insights on the big trends—like gerrymandering and demographics—that will affect the election the most. Wilson is quick, confident, and full of energy, and his enthusiasm for political analysis is contagious and easily caught by his audience. He is one of the few nonpartisan analysts to use visuals, and his presentations are an exciting and fun look into what's coming in politics.
