Globally Recognized Expert on Self-Leadership, International Keynote Speaker

'Accelerating Results through Self-leadership'

If you don't deliver results, you will fail; but if you attempt to deliver results at the cost of you or your employees psychological safety, you will eventually fail.

To address this challenge, Andrew Bryant wrote 'The New Leadership Playbook: Being Human Whilst Successfully Delivering Accelerated Results'.

The book, which informs the speech, and contains seven leadership principles, and twelve leadership plays (conversations) that address today's leadership challenges.

This engaging keynote, which will be tailored to the audience, contains Andrew's Leadership Accelerator model that allows participants to immediately see their roadblocks to results, and how to overcome them.

The Audience will Learn

- Self-leadership means accepting responsibility for your results. You don't blame other people and you don't make excuses. This can be challenging during times of uncertainty; however, a self-leader sees options and grasps opportunities when others are waiting to be rescued.
- We are born into a frame of mind that is reinforced by our early experiences, and education. Unless we become aware of these frames of mind, and take ownership, we will be destined to firefighting one issue after another until we are exhausted.
- You can't lead others unless you first lead yourself. As you increase your self-awareness, and embrace self-learning, and self-regulation you will get results.
- There is a formula, and that formula is that Clear Expectations X Mindset & Motivation X Right Behaviors = Accelerated Results.

The speech ends with an inspiring call to action.
