

Arthur Snell

Former senior British Diplomat, Expert on Geopolitics, Conflict, Counter-Terrorism and Radicalisation

Elemental-How we will Live in a warming world Covers varied issues as critical minerals, climate-induced migration, new shipping lanes arising from global warming and the impact of the energy transition on hydrocarbon-exporting countries.

The Geopolitics of Climate Change: How the Climate Crisis Will Change Global Power Relations and Drive Conflict Arthur Snell, a former British ambassador and bestselling author, explains how accelerating climate change impacts global energy, food, trade and migration dynamics. How will the world of 10 billion people feed itself in an era of declining agricultural productivity? Will climate-induced mass migration lead to new conflicts? Who will be the winners and losers from the energy transition? Will there be new wars over water? Arthur is able to unpick these complex and interlinked questions in an accessible and informative way.

The New World Order post Ukraine – where does the invasion leave the geopolitics of Europe In this speech Arthur discusses the role of NATO, its possible expansion, the role of EU as well as those of individual EU nations.

The Role of China in the New Global Power Struggle What could this mean for Taiwan, Sino-Russian relations and the global trade?

The New Global Disorder What do the responses to the Ukraine invasion tell us about the roles of regional powers across the globe? Are we seeing the emergence of new geopolitical blocks and what will that mean for trade, investment and diplomacy?

The Middle East A look at the future of the Gulf nations in a Net Zero world.

Radicalisation and Terrorism An analysis of the human factor in radicalization from the man who has spoken to terrorists across the world.

Intelligence and Espionage How is it evolving though technology?