

Paul Kix

Entrepreneur, Best-Selling Author, and American Journalist

Paul Kix is a best-selling author, entrepreneur, and public speaker who shows corporate teams how they can change their present circumstances and live out the full promise of their future. Paul's public speaking is equal parts inspiration and how-to, and his presentations have benefited start-ups, mid-sized companies, non-profits (The Jimmy Carter Presidential Library) and the executive teams of Fortune 500 firms (Prudential, and Pratt & Whitney). Paul uses his two-plus decades of experience as a writer, in outlets like The New Yorker, Atlantic, Inc, and Entrepreneur, and turns to his two best-selling books, which have been optioned by DreamWorks and Radar Pictures, respectively, to drive home the story of the need to change. Paul's presentation often leaves audiences in tears. Paul lives in Connecticut with his wife and family.
